

Before there was man, there were Geese.

Enormous, winged, jagged tooth beasts that roamed the Planet Foase.

With the ability to fly, swim & run at astounding speeds, these megafauna struck fear into their prey.

First, the chill from the sound of its wings. Like the world's largest flag billowing in the wind.

Next, the chill from the shadow. Its absolute mass blocking out the sun and any chance of survival...

Finally, slowly picking apart their prey. Taking pleasure in vivisecting it, limb by limb...

Gazbee is a silly goose!

A visual of a quiet town. A central square surrounding a large fountain. A goose in the middle spouts water from its mouth. A group of children are at its feet getting drenched

- A store owner flips his closed sign to open.
- A young couple strolls, hand in hand, clearly a blossoming relationship
- A group of school children runs to the stairs as the bell rings. The morning dew still frosts the grass. Overgrown but clean of weeds.
- An eye opens. A bright pink iris with a beady black pupil. A look of thrill runs across it as the pupil expands.

Cut to Gazbee going over his journal

“First on the to-do list: Breakfast. I think I want something sweet today. Maybe a croissant or two...”

Gazbee honks at the door until it opens for him. A meek voice calls out

“How can I help you?”

Gazbee honks again as if to say: “You know.”

The door opens wide and Gazbee flaps in.

He finds the display full of fresh pastries and baked goods.

He finds the croissants and tears them apart. Hardly eating any one in entirety, but certainly biting them all.

After he’s had his fill, he lays an egg and leaves the store in a mess of crumbs.

As the door closes behind him, the egg crack, leaving a message:

“See ya tomorrow !)”

Cut to Gazbee going over his journal

“After that, I should catch up with my new girlfriend. Maybe go for a swim together”

The young couple are slowly picking up speed, clearly avoiding something.

A honk is heard...

As they enter the square, they run to the center to gain a vantage over where their pursuer could be coming from.

From behind the central gilded goose, a wave of water washes over the two.

They stumble to the ground, drenched and clearly shocked...

Gazbee flutters onto the lady from behind his statue.

He gives her an intimate kiss and leaves another bright, glossy, golden egg on the man's chest.

It splits and leaves a message: "I like flowers too ya know!")"

Cut to Gazbee going over his journal

"Finally I'll catch up with my friends and unwind after a long day..."

The grass has dried after a long day in the sun,

The school bell rings and the sound of feet flying down the stone stairs echoes across the field.

Their faces painted with emotion. They rush out the front doors, almost trampling one another.

Gazbee exits the building. Soaring on his large, gold wings.

His face full of fondness.

As he's leaving he spots his favorite friend:

A small, round boy, struggling to keep up with the pack.

He aims and drops an egg on his friend.

It reads "Maybe next time !)"

As Gazbee soars, the camera pans to a large city in the distance, the gold goose slowly fades into the horizon.

A car alarm sounds and a faint honking can be heard...
